

Rafael Calduch Cervera

(Pedralba, Valencia, 1952) Rafael Calduch Cervera graduated with degrees in Political Science and Sociology, while specializing in International Studies (1974). He earned his Honours Degree in 1975 and is a Doctor in Political Science and Economics, Policy Section, and received his credentials from the Complutense University of Madrid (1979). He was an Associate Professor of Public International Law and International Relations at the School of Information Sciences at the Complutense University of Madrid (1984-2000).

He has been Director of the Departmental Sections of International Law and International Relations at the Faculty of CC Information from the Complutense University of Madrid (1990 - 1999). He is also Coordinator of Central and Eastern Europe in the Master of Higher Studies Centre of National Defence (CESEDEN) at the Complutense University of Madrid (1994-1996).

Rafael Calduch Cervera is currently a member of the Governing Council of the Complutense University of Madrid and Professor of International Law and International Relations at the School of Information Sciences at the Complutense University of Madrid.